Alumni Spotlight: Nick Andre

Having completed his studies at Marist College after the Fall of ’09 with a major in Business Administration and a minor in Psychology, Nick Andre is ready to take the next step in life. For most graduating seniors that step would include applying for a multitude of positions and hoping to land on their feet. For Nick, that means continuing to work hard towards pursuing a career in football. Nick recently took part in scouting pro-days for both the NFL and UFL where he was put on display for representatives from both leagues. In addition to workouts he handed out a carefully compiled “player profile” in the hopes of catching someone’s eye. So what’s the next step for Nick? Teams will begin making calls for rookie training camp invitations starting in mid-May and until then it’s a game of wait and see. “Some people say that I shouldn’t waste my time chasing a dream but I’m not chasing anything. This is a calculated move.” If things don’t work out on the field for Nick he isn’t concerned. He’ll continue to be around the game of football by lending a helping hand at Marist through the Spring semester and when he’s done here he’ll always be backed by his Business degree. Nick knows that just like every other graduating senior, he’ll eventually find his niche and until then he’ll continue to thrive around the game that he loves.

White Ribbon Campaign

The White Ribbon Campaign is the largest effort in the world of men working to end violence against women. Marist began its participation in the campaign in the Spring of 2008 as Dan Smith (Reston, VA) and Adalberto Ruiz (Harrison, NJ) of the Marist Football team led the initiative. More than 100 Red Fox student-athletes participated in the program that pledges to never “commit, condone, or remain silent about violence against women & girls”. Last year’s campaign was led by Ray Fiumefreddo of the Marist football team and Terah Paluba of the Marist softball team. This year, Terah will once again be leading the campaign. The event will be held on April 21st @ 11:00 with the march starting at McCann. If you would like to be involved in this year’s event, please contact Terah Paluba at Terah.Paluba.1@marist.edu.
