The Marist Volleyball team has recently hosted local events to raise money for the Sloan-Kettering Cancer Center in New York City in the name of Marist junior volleyball player Raeanna Gutkowski (Long Valley, NJ). Gutkowski is currently battling osteosarcoma, a cancerous disease, and is receiving treatment regularly at Sloan-Kettering. Dining to Donate at Applebee’s was the first of three events designed to raise awareness of osteosarcoma. The five-hour benefit raised an estimated $650. The second event, an information session, was held on October 20th at the Marist College Cabaret. The third and final event will be the Marist volleyball match against Iona on Sunday, November 1, at 2p.m. in the McCann Center. Admission to the event is free, donations will be accepted and there will be a raffle for prizes.
