Faculty Position Opening in the School of Social & Behavioral Sciences

Marist College, located in New York’s historic Hudson River Valley, invites applications for:

Assistant/Associate Professor of Literacy (two openings)

The teacher education program at Marist College is searching for two, tenure-track literacy faculty - one elementary and one secondary.

Join a Collaborative, Collegial Teacher Education Faculty
We seek applicants who understand contemporary literacy theories, models, and practices. You should be an excellent teacher educator at both the graduate and undergraduate level, have ideas and plans about the types of research and scholarship you want to pursue, and be passionate about the roles literacy education can play in the lives of students. The courses you will teach will depend on your areas of expertise and interest as well as the needs of the teacher education program. However, we expect one new faculty member to focus on grades 1-6 and the other to focus on 7-12+.

Preferred Qualifications
The ideal candidate will have a doctorate in an appropriate field but if you are ADB near completion your application will be considered. Candidates should have experience working in schools and demonstrate the potential to contribute to the intellectual vitality of the teacher education program as well as the ability to work collegially with other faculty and with school leaders and teachers in the region. Experience working with diverse populations and in high needs schools is highly desired.

The Campus
Marist College is a selective, comprehensive, independent, liberal arts institution located in the Hudson River Valley of New York State. The 150-acre campus, bordering the Hudson River, serves over 5000 graduate and undergraduate students. Marist operates on a solid financial basis and in recent years has pursued a major building expansion, including a new state-of-the art library, student residence complexes, a faculty office/classroom building, and an art building. Construction is currently underway on a new, high-technology building with faculty offices and high tech classrooms as well as specialized information technology laboratories. Marist is nationally ranked as one of the most “wired” campuses in the nation. The College has also been recognized for excellence by U.S. News & World Report, The Princeton Review, Kiplinger’s Personal Finance, Entrepreneur Magazine, and Barron’s Best Buys in College Education. Marist College is strongly committed to the principle of diversity and is especially interested in receiving applications from members of ethnic minorities, women, disabled individuals, and other under-represented groups.
