

Doris Conti, VP, Public Cloud, Technical Program Mgmt., IBM

Doris is a technical VP at IBM, currently leading complex program management for IBM's Public Cloud. Doris has been with IBM for over 25 years, with roles in mainframe technology, file system development, storage, high performance computing, and now in public cloud. Her background is software development, and with that she has taken on a variety of roles including hw/sw development, release management, client support, performance, product management, strategy and marketing.

Originally from Long Island, Doris lives in Poughkeepsie and is a very proud mother of 3. She is a graduate of Marist College with a BS and MS in Computer Science, and currently serves on the Marist Computer Science and Math Board of Advisors.