

Hello & welcome to the course. My name is Amanda Dixon, I've been a licensed mental health counselor for almost 15 years and an adjunct instructor at Marist University for a number of years as well. I teach a variety of psychology courses because psychology is a topic I'm incredibly passionate about, especially when it comes to human development. In my work as a licensed mental health counselor I work with children, teens and adults. I enjoy being able to see human development across the lifespan firsthand with the populations I serve, this is especially true of the adolescent stage which brings along with it so many wonderful areas of growth and change! I'm a huge advocate for mental health and continue to make accessibility for the community to mental health supports my mission. I'm excited to get to know you throughout the semester!

Please see important course information below:

Email: amanda.dixon@marist.edu

Textbook: Adolescence by John W. Santrock, E-Book version

ISBN: 9781260449235R365